

We are a multi-disciplinary creative studio in Denver, CO. We believe in open, honest business practices with our clients and employees. We focus on people first, but attention to detail in our work is a close second. And speaking of work, we only take on projects that allow us to do great stuff for like-minded people. We are relatively new, but in very high demand and have big plans for the future.

Things you should be awesome at:

- Elegant, organized coding/file management techniques
- Exact pixel level attention to detail for design implementation
- Managing your time as it pertains to working in a results-driven environment
- PHP/MySQL development with experience in popular open source frameworks and tools
- Advanced, progressive techniques with JavaScript, XHTML and HTML5
- Identifying (and preferably creating) top-notch design work

A few things to note when considering Legwork:

- We have a small office, space is limited
- We provide workplace flexibility that rivals almost any company out there
- We occasionally bring animals to work
- We don't offer company health plans yet, but we will reimburse you for a personal health plan
- We simultaneously crush deadlines and beers
- Competitive compensation + paid vacation

You should like loud music and sweet times. You should hate business gear and bluetooth headsets. If this sounds like the coolest thing you've heard since Van Halen "1984", drop us a line at sweet-developer@legworkstudio.com.
